The confessional poets, a group that also included Sylvia Plath and Robert Lowell, broke down the traditional barriers between the private and public self. Sexton, arguably one of the most daring among them, used her personal life – her stays in mental institutions, her tumultuous relationships, her perceived inadequacies – as raw material for her art. In a time when such topics were often relegated to hushed whispers or euphemisms, Sexton confronted them head-on. Her poems about desire, masturbation, menstruation, and sexual frustration were groundbreaking. She gave voice to the female body, its hungers, its pleasures, and its pains, in a way that had rarely been seen in mainstream poetry.

The poems related to her own mother and her daughters provide a deeply personal glimpse into family dynamics, the inheritance of trauma, and the enduring bonds that shape us. The raw honesty with which she addresses these themes makes "the complete poems Anne Sexton" an invaluable resource for understanding the nuances of family life and the maternal experience.
